

LPGA HOLE BY HOLE

#1 (par 4) The fairway on this short par 4 will be a premium. Front pin placements are a challenge for any player hitting a second shot from the rough.

#2 (par 5) A 3-shot par 5 with a very challenging approach will provide a lot of entertainment. The area to the left of the green slopes dramatically towards a lateral water hazard.

#3 (par 3) Featuring a slightly angled green, this short hole requires a precise shot from the tee. Most players will take a par and move thankfully to the next hole.

#4 (par 4) Two fairways guarding the left side of the fairway may seem daunting, but offer a preferred target to the lateral water hazard running the length of the right side of this hole. The approach shot is exacting. Any shot landing on the right side of the green has a significant chance of rolling into the hazard. A very dangerous hole.

#5 (par 4) The green on this par 4 has been moved back 10 yards and elevated 7 feet. Going for the green in 1 is not recommended due to the difficult rough and bunkers that surround the target area.

#6 (par 3) Water lurks left and long on this lengthy par 3. A new greenside bunker prohibits a “run-up” shot. Precision is required.

#7 (par 5) A new fairway bunker in the right center of the fairway calls for an exact shot. Longer hitters can carry it, but a front, greenside bunker may cause players to re-think going for the green in two.

#8 (par 4) Lengthened by 40 yards, this par 4 presents the most challenging tee shot on the front side. Players must carry the right side of the fairway far enough to clear the trees on the left. A deep greenside bunker stands on the right. A “middle of the green” approach shot is a good idea.

#9 (par 4) A new fairway bunker on the left will force players to aim to the right. A well protected green with a false front makes = make it difficult to hit the ball close.

#10 (par 4) This short Par 4 requires an accurate short iron into the green. Roll off areas behind the green await overly-aggressive approaches.

#11 (par3) Target golf at its very best. Although short, this hole features an undulating green with 5 distinct placement areas. Precise tee shots will yield birdies. Stray too far from the hole and three-putts are a distinct possibility.

#12 (par 4) Members have called this the most improved hole on the course. The removal of several trees on the right now makes the green visible from the teeing area. An enlarged green featured a lower shelf that requires considerable skill to hit it close.

#13 (par 5) The ditch that traversed the fairway of this slight, dog-leg right hole has been filled, which will entice longer hitters to attempt to cut the corner. Considerable trouble (trees and ditches on either side of the fairway) awaits poorly-placed drives. The large green makes club selection a priority.

#14 (par 5) A demanding Par 5 that requires 3 quality shots. The fairway bunker on the left has been removed, which opens up opportunities from the tee. The contours of the green have been softened, but it still requires an accurate 3rd shot.

#15 (par 3) Pinnacle's signature hole is a short, island-green par 3 that features a number of changes. In addition to new tee locations, the green has been re-shaped and reduced in size. There is a new collection area to the right of the green.

#16 (par 4) A fantastic par 4 features a new tee box and a fairway bunker on the left. The green has been moved slightly back and left so that it stands nearer to a lateral water hazard. A back left pin will require all players to fly a ball all the way over two strategically-placed bunkers.

#17 (par 3) The green has dramatically changed on this par 3. The front of the green is now open and will accept a run-up shot. A big swale in the middle-back of the green can reward a properly-aimed tee shot—or create a nightmare chipping/putting situation for players who land on the wrong side. Par is a great score.

#18 (par 5) Significant changes await on the finishing hole. Players will have to thread the needle between new bunkers on either side of the fairway. A pond in front of the green significantly narrows the fairway and calls for caution when selecting a second shot. The green (lowered and enlarged) will reward good shots and punish anything that is inexact. This hole promises to afford an exciting finish to the course.
